Taylor: China has nothing to fear from U.S. Position, hence, is the Chinese Theory of "wars of National Liberation" as opposed to "USSR Theory of peaceful coexistence."

Aside from what can be regarded as an intended lie about whether China has cause to fear US — and he knows US and Int. policy (S. & Sch.) has been to protect China, preferably by preventing her to attack, & the more genteel diplomatic approach of "containing" China, is this another twist in US line on undefined "Communist aggression" &, in which USSR is either teacher & China pupil? Is an effort to widen their split over their attitudes & policies toward US & its acts & policies?
